

Why compare business electricity prices?

Change of Tenancy

When you move to new business premises your business energy supplier will automatically put you onto a high electricity tariff. This high tariff is called a 'deemed rate' because a contract is deemed to exist between you and the current electricity supplier of that premises. Stay on this 'out of contract' and you could be paying a lot more for your electricity than if you switched suppliers. Shop around and compare business electricity providers and you can take advantage of lower electricity prices straight away.

Why compare electricity prices?

Even if you haven't recently moved business premises and have been with the same electricity provider for some time, you could still save money by comparing electricity suppliers. What was a good rate when you signed up some time ago may no longer be the most competitive rate on the market. Even if you have a small business, selecting the most competitively priced electricity supplier could save you a significant amount of money.

If you're a new business and you stick to the high 'deemed rate' you're automatically put on with your new premises, you could be paying hundreds of extra pounds on your electricity each year. It's quick and simple to compare business electricity prices, and switching could dramatically reduce your electricity bill.
